

Country royalty comes to Greenville

Written by Terry Mathews

Saturday, 01 March 2014 12:05

Loretta Lynn takes a final bow after her sold-out show at Greenville's Municipal Auditorium Friday night. The Coal Miner's Daughter performed more than 25 songs, including "Honky Tonk Girl," the first song she wrote, "Don't Come Home A Drinkin'" and "You Ain't Woman Enough," during a 90-minute set. Her twin daughters, Pasty and Peggy, opened the show. Several times during the evening, the Queen of Country Music expressed her gratitude, saying Texas gigs kept food on the table early in her career. "Texas kept us from starving." Courtesy Photo by Alice Black Parker